

Monte Cassino, which are also of splendid Byzantine workmanship, The great shrine of St, Michael on Monte Gargano was also enriched by this family; it was Pantaleo who, in 1076, presented the bronze doors, east by his orders in Constantinople, which still keep the entrance to the Grotto Church of the Archangel; the inscription over the doors still remains-- wgo vas omncs qui hue vcnitis causa oration is ul *prim in s-piciaiis tarn pulchrum laborctn et sic intmnlef

pregamini Dominum proni pro animitt JPuittaUtonis *qui fuil auctor httjus l&boris

The family to whom South Italy owed HO much did not escape the vieiKsituck's of fortune which ruined the noblest families around them. In 1062
they generously entertained in their palace at Constantinople Gitmlf II., Prince, of Safrno,
who WEB then seeking aid n^aiiiHt lh« Normans
from the Greek court, Their kindtieuK wa» ill-requited, CHsulf, a man of cruel dtH^HiHitlcm,
and made dcajxirate by Norman «g| *re»»ifm, fell savagely upon Anialfi in 1073, hoping u> eapturo its fleet. In a naval skirmish, John, sun of Mtiuro, was slain; another, ulstj named Mtmrn, was captured. The Prince of Salerno, failing to extract

the vast ransom of thirty thousand l[^]mntii
which he demanded from the family, had his prisoner blinded, mutilated, and finally Hung into

540, .» of this